Newsletter of the Ohio Board of Examiners of Architects

Summer 2004

Is Your Registration Current?

Below is a list of Ohio resident architects, current in the preceding renewal period, who have not renewed their registration for the current registration renewal period. We are publishing this list as a reminder that if you have not renewed and are practicing or holding out as an architect that you need to renew your license to avoid penalties. If you have retired, please let us know that.

NCARB Adopts 5-year Rolling Clock for ARE

At the Annual Meeting in Portland, Oregon in June, 2004, the National Council of Architectural Registration Boards adopted the following resolution:

To pass the ARE, an applicant must achieve a passing grade on each division. A passing grade for any division of the ARE shall be valid for five years after which time the division must be retaken unless all divisions have been passed. NCARB may allow a reasonable extension of such period in circumstances where completion of all divisions is prevented by a medical condition, by active duty in military service or by other causes.

This resolution will become effective January 1, 2006. Contact the Board office if you have questions about the implementation of this resolution or read about it on the NCARB web site: www.ncarb.org.

Architecture is easy: you just stare at the paper until droplets of blood appear on your forehead.

File No. 04-02

Anthony G. Dorsch

Cert. No. 5349

Cranberry Twp., PA

Mr. Dorsch's Certificate of Qualification lapsed December 31, 1991. It was discovered that he had engaged in the unlicensed practice of architecture by preparing plans for a restaurant in the Youngstown, Ohio area in 2003. After being made aware that his license had lapsed, he applied for reinstatement. After an administrative hearing, the Board voted to deny Mr. Dorsch's application for reinstatement of his license.

File No. 04-13

Mark A. Line, P. E.

First Choice Consultant

Findlay, Ohio

This firm was originally an engineering company, not an architectural firm. However, they have allegedly held themselves out to the public as an "Architectural & Engineering" firm via telephone directories and other various marketing and business brochures. A settlement agreement was entered into whereby they have agreed to cease and desist from holding themselves out as architects until they meet the requirements of an architectural firm. As of April 2004, this firm applied for and was granted a certificate of authorization, and is now a legitimate architectural firm.

File No. 04-14

John W. Winterich, III

John W. Winterich & Assoc.

Cleveland, Ohio

This firm specializes in stained glass contracting, and is not an architectural firm. However, they have allegedly held themselves out to the public as offering "Architectural Services" via a Catholic Diocese telephone directory. A settlement agreement was entered into whereby they have agreed to cease and desist from such practices.

File No. 04-15

Gary Bush

Murray Commercial Interiors

Wilmington, Ohio

Alleged to have engaged in the unlicensed practice of architecture by offering to provide architectural design services involving a union hall in the Dayton, Ohio area. A settlement agreement was entered into whereby he will cease and desist from such practices.

Thanks!

How does one say goodbye and thanks for the many wonderful years of work with the Board. I had intended to be here six years and I have been ... plus another 21 or so. Over the years I have been blessed with excellent Board members to work with and, sadly, I've attended the funerals of several. I always looked forward to welcoming new Board members but that was always tempered by the loss of a friend leaving the Board. I have been proud of the involvement of the Board members with national affairs serving on and chairing various NCARB committees and one, Ballard Kirk, going on to serve as national president and making a difference.

I've seen many of you anxiously sitting through exams and then the delight/satisfaction/relief of becoming registered. I've seen many of you go on to create wonderful architecture, become active and responsible community members and mothers and fathers, husbands and wives. Individually and collectively you create a force that is creating a better place for all of us to live. My hat is off to you and I am proud to know you and to have been associated with you.

There are the many people that I have met and had the pleasure of working with through NCARB. The many committees, grading sessions, regional and national meetings, too numerous to mention. While the memory of what we accomplished may have faded, the memory of those I've met and worked side by side will forever remain a joy in my heart.

Many things have changed and while the administration of the old paper and pencil exam was semi-annual interruption in our office routine, it was the time when I was able to meet many of you, some of you I got to know better than others as you returned more often. 😊 The computer exam may be more humane than bringing all the candidates to Columbus and over a four-day period, sucking their brains dry. But much was also lost in the camaraderie, the renewing of old friendships and the sense of sharing the exam struggle together. Much was lost nationally as well with no more grading sessions that brought people together from all the 55 NCARB jurisdictions. But what are you gonna do when no one knows how to draw any more?

Each of you out there has contributed in some way to that which has become a large part of the fabric of my life. I owe each of you a debt of gratitude. Thanks for the opportunity, I hope I have served you well.

Bill Wilcox

Ram-shack-le /'ram-shak-el/ adj. : Pertaining to a certain order of architecture, otherwise known as Normal American. Most of the public buildings of the United States are of the Ramshackle order, though some of our earlier architects preferred the Ironic. Recent additions to the White House in Washington are Theo-Doric, the ecclesiastic order of the Dorians. They are exceedingly fine and cost one hundred dollars a brick.

New Executive Director

It had been hoped that a successor Executive Director would have been named by the time this edition of Columns was published but that has not happened. The Board members are working diligently to select the person to direct the day to day activities of the Board. An opportunity awaits someone out there. If you think you might be interested, contact any one of the Board members for details.
